YOUTH'S AMBITION IN POVERTY LEADS TO SERIOUS FALL

Son of Rabbi Worked as Conductor by Day, Studied Medicine by Night.

HIS MIND GIVES WAY.

Both Ankles Broken in Tumble From Window of East Side Home.

In a struggle with poverty and ambition, Morris Frachtenberg, twentyone years of age, early to-day fell. The fall took him thirty feet to the street, and thence into Bellevue with both ankles broken, but not out of the fight Morris's father is Rabbi Abraham

Frachtenberg of No. 85 Seventh street. Rabbi Frachtenberg was poor, but ne was learned and ambitious for his children, Morris and Katrina, Some day Morris would be a great doctor. discovering the radio-activity that be sets a disease-threatened world. must study and occome wise in

A Studious Lad.

Into this plan Morris entered with The people wto came to his father's synagogue in Forsythe street knew the lad as a studious, intelligent scholar. He had taken the public school course with the interest of a mentally hungry child, and then came to New York City College, where he went to lay the foundation for his medical career.

But it was a struggle to keep the family moving while the education was being acquired and while sister Katrina was finding out all that Washing ton Irving High School had to offer There came a day when Morris had to push aside his books and seek work to help the family. So he dropped his college course and took up the bell cord of a Third avenue trolley car.

When the long hours on the back platform were over he went home and lighted the lamp over his precious books. There he delved into the mys-teries of life and death, that he might be able to rejoin his class without loss of time when he had saved enough from his job on the car to pay the family way and to get a breathing

Broke Down Mentally.

The strain of long working and study hours broke his mental force. A few days ago he began acting strangely. He left the car and came home. The father watched all night in his room that no harm might come to the boy. Early to-day he went into his mother's "I am afraid that something will happen to me," he said. The mother sent his sister into his room to watch. Morris asked her to get him a drink and she left the room When she came back he had toppled from the window to the street below,

TELL OF RESCUE AT SEA.

French Cruiser Here Saved Crew of Philadelphia Yacht,

The French cruisers La Gloire, Admiral Aube and Conde, which under command of Admiral Dufaure de la Jerte, have been cruising in American waters for some months, anchored off Tompkinsville, S. I., at 6.25 P. M. yesterday.

La Gloire on March 15 reported by wireless that she had rescued the crew of the auxiliary yacht Edith Anna of iladelphia, owned by Thomas Hender n. The Edith Anna was bound for Havana. The rescue was in latitude north 27 and longitude west 79.40. The French crews will have shore leave here.

NO "HELLO" IN THE NAVY.

WASHINGTON, March 29.-"Hello" has been banished from the telephone service of the Navy Department. Any of the officials or employees here or at yards and stations in the United States instead of answering a telephone call by "hello" will give their name or the name of the office.

Secretary Meyer believes that to say "heilo" to every phone call is a waste of time and that if persons answering the phone will reply by their name or name of the office, some of which are half a yard in length, time will be saved. At any rate, the Secretary says, mistakes in telephone numbers will be more quickly remedied.
